Mr. Levering makes no criticism of the Secretary of Agriculture personally, nor of officials under him. He as taken the estimates of the cotton rop for the past ten years, compared hem with the ascertained crop, and educes the conclusion that the estimates have been uniformly less than the actual crop to the extent of 7-42 per cent, or a total of 778,400 bales maintains that the differences be ween the figures of Lovering and hose of the department vary simply ecause of the variation in the weight of bales. He says the department announced its estimate of the crop on December 4 in bales of 500 pounds gross weight; that the Census Bureau makes its preliminary reports in "running bales." Running bales are those actually turned out by the ginners. and, according to Burleson, they have different weights in different states. Taking this fact into consideration Burleson says that if the running bales are reduced to 500 pounds gross weight, so as to afford a correct basis for comparison, the seeming discrepancy between the ginners' report and the estimate of the Department of Agriculture is thoroughly explained.
